Or the Liquor Habis Ponl tvely Cured by administering Br. Hainer's Galden Hapceiffe.

It can be given in a cup of conce or tea, or in feed, without the knowledge of the patient. It is absolutely harmless, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alone whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alone whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alone week. It has been given in the usuads of cases, and in every instance a perfect cure has followed a server fields. The system once impreended with the specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist.

at lower prices than similar grades commanded last year, and this in tace of an enormous advance in raw silk. Why? Because during the dull season, when raw silk was low, we made exceedingly large purchases, and now these goods are being delivered to us daily. When our stock is exhausted, the same goods cannot be bought for less than onethird more than we ask for them.
